For centuries, scientists have used careful and detailed drawings to better understand living things.

The detailed drawings by naturalist Charles Darwin helped us to better understand living things from around the world.

Although sketches and notes are still made by scientists, the artist Levon Biss is using a more modern approach to capturing the detail of some beautiful invertebrates.

http://microsculpture.net/