

Hannah Massey

I have been teaching violin, viola and basic cello for 12 years now, after studying music and instrumental teaching at the University of Chichester. I currently teach in Birmingham, Hinckley and many schools throughout Leicester. I run the Area centre Junior and Senior strings in Birstall as well as the school orchestra.

For 6 years i have been working at Sketchley Hill gradually building up my strings teaching and now we have children learning from year 2-6. I have been playing violin for over 22yrs and i still love it! I offer the students the chance to regularly perform to the school and their parents at the end of each term. This allows them to show off their progress and also gives something to work towards. The concerts also offer the chance to play together as a group which allows the younger children to hear the older ones and aspire to be like them. I believe that music should be for enjoyment. I often say to my students "practice because you want to get better and not because your told too!"
