

Worksheet 1

Year 3

In England, graffiti is illegal. You could receive a fine from the police if you are caught. However, many people still do it because they argue that graffiti is a type of art and it helps them to express themselves. Other people think that it makes towns look untidy and dirty. They strongly believe that it is vandalism.

Have a look at the following pictures and decide whether you think they are art or vandalism. Explain your answer to each picture.

Your task is to write a bullet point list of ideas for both sides of the argument.

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. A single vertical line runs down the center of the page, creating two equal-width columns. There are 20 horizontal lines in total, evenly spaced across the entire height of the page. The lines are thin and light gray or blue in color. The overall appearance is that of a clean, unused notebook page or a template for a document.
